Brazilian singer/songwriter gives us a locals-only tour of her hometown of Sao Paulo.

by Tom Pryor

Each week Nat Geo Music scours the far reaches of the internet to bring you the coolest new videos from around the world.

This week we turn to Brazil, where singer/songwriter Luisa Maita gives us a musical tour of her hometown, São Paulo, in the video for "Alento" from her solo debut Lero-Lero on Cumbancha records.

Directed by João Wainer, "Alento" takes the viewer on a stroll through the musically and culturally diverse Bexiga neighborhood where Luisa grew up, surrounded by the sounds of samba and bossa nova, as well as the music of immigrants from Brazil's Northeast and even farther abroad.

It's the confluence of these diverse sounds, filtered through Luisa's unique outlook and sensibility, that makes Lero-Lero such an infectious and compelling listening experience.

Enjoy!
